Preface

Message From the Vice Chancellor of Universiti Malaysia Sarawak Professor Datuk Dr. Mohamad Kadim Suaidi

Assalamualaikum Warahmatullahi Wabarakatuh and greetings from Universiti Malaysia Sarawak.

It is a great honour for me to welcome all esteemed guests and participants to the 10th International Borneo Business Conference 2022 (#ibbc2022). My heartiest congratulations to the Faculty of Economics and Business Universiti Malaysia Sarawak (UNIMAS) for organizing this conference.

As the world is currently facing a macroeconomic catastrophe sparked by the COVID-19 pandemic, UNIMAS welcomes the theme of this conference “Diversification of the Economy and Business Sustainability: Opportunities and Challenges” in which we are committed to identify the opportunities carefully and constructively as well as overcome the challenges in the current economy so that the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) can be reached. It is vital that we understand our strengths and weaknesses to diversify our economy and ensure that the sustainability of the local community can be achieved. Expertise in economics and business is required to survive and flourish in this debt-driven economic crisis.

It is hoped that this conference can be a platform for academics to share their valuable ideas and discuss how those ideas can be applied in various contexts. Consequently, UNIMAS serves to make sure that we communicate such crucial information that would address business challenges and opportunities to the community.

Finally, I would like to take this chance to congratulate the conference organizers for putting on a successful event. I am hoping that this conference will aid in achieving the SDG goals. I wish all participants a fruitful conference.

Wassalamualaikum Warahmatullahi Wabarakatuh.

Message From the Dean of Faculty of Economics and Business Professor Dr. Rossazana Ab Rahim

Bismillahirrahmanirrahim. Assalamu 'alaikum warahmatullahi wabarakatuh.

A warm welcome to participants of the 10th International Borneo Business Conference 2022 (#ibbc2022) conducted in both physically and online modes.

This conference has always served as a platform for academics and industry professionals to share the results of their extensive research in a variety of business-related topics. The theme for this year, "Diversification of the Economy and Business Sustainability: Opportunities and Challenges," offers a significant change in many ways, especially for the Business and Economics researchers, as it encourages them to go above and beyond the norm to develop a business environment that is more holistic and, in turn, effectively translates for the benefit of the community. This type of engagement is essential for sustaining business risks and problems within the society.

The conference's goals are to examine the problems, opportunities, and difficulties facing Borneo's economy and business as well as the world at large; and fostering the exchange of concepts and the most recent information on issues affecting the global economy that are critically and analytically analysed based on empirical investigations.

COVID-19 pandemic has created significant and profound impacts on the business corporate and our society at large, and we take this opportunity to encourage researchers to continue developing their interests and abilities to conduct research under this circumstance. This platform is a manifestation of our continued support and inspiration to our researchers and practitioners; they would not only present and share their research findings, but also construct a global network while learning the most recent advancement and growth of research in the business area.

The organizing committee, secretariat, committee members, and supporting staff deserve praise and genuine appreciation for their arduous efforts and dedication in making sure that this first hybrid conference is done effectively. I hope the presenters have a fantastic sharing session and I wish them luck. Finally, I wish for all attendees to find this conference to be useful and full of amazing opportunities for knowledge and experience sharing.

Thank you.

Message From the Chairperson iBBC 2022 Dr. Mohd Khairul Hisyam Hassan

I am delighted to welcome you to the 10th International Borneo Business Conference 2022 at the Raia Hotel and Convention Centre from 19th to 21st September 2022 in Kuching, Sarawak, Malaysia. The Covid-19 pandemic knows no boundary, it affects not only lives but also the sustainability of businesses and livelihood of people from all background. The state of Sarawak is no exception. However, the restructuring and diversification of state economy has helped in cushioning its detrimental impact. The Sarawak Government intends to continue diversifying its economy by concentrating on agricultural modernisation, infrastructure improvement, tourist advancement, and human capital development, as described in the Post Covid-19 Development Strategy (PCDS) 2030.

This conference also intends to develop young scholars by strengthening their thinking ability and self-sufficiency in specific research interests.

On behalf of the organizing committee of the IBBC2022, I would like to extend my sincere appreciation to Professor Datuk Dr. Mohammad Kadim Suaidi, Vice Chancellor of Universiti Malaysia Sarawak (UNIMAS) and Profesor Dr. Rossazana Ab-Rahim, Dean of Faculty of Economics & Business, for their consistent support towards the success of this conference. Mediating Effect of Tacit Knowledge Sharing among Nurses: Case of a Malaysian Teaching Hospital

ABSTRACT

The complications of Covid-19 have intensely increased the importance of nurses' tacit knowledge sharing worldwide when protocols and rules are being developed at a rapid paced and uncertainty is a constant concern. The unexpected critical care workforce demands more nurses to exploit their previous experience and knowledge to be learned, unlearned, and re-learn. As such, nurse supervisors may provide continuous support on the urgency of an event due to the varying procedures and providing patient care. One way to examine the nurses' relationship is via Social Exchange Theory (SET) lens which two or more individuals mutually benefit social exchange of support in decision. In turn, such an environment will be likely to encourage tacit knowledge sharing and contribute to innovative behavior among the nurses. Despite the emergence of tacit knowledge sharing as an important predictor of innovative behaviour, research that goes linking tacit knowledge sharing as a mediator is astoundingly less explored. Using social exchange theory as the underpinning theory, seven hypotheses were tested. The research method included both self-report and supervisor-report. Both 360 nursing employees and 21 nurse supervisors in a teaching hospital were selected using disproportionate stratified sampling, which yields 94.17 per cent response rate. Data were obtained through survey and analyses were performed using Structural Equation Modelling (SEM) confirmed using Partial Least Squares (PLS). The results showed that three hypotheses were significant, and two hypotheses were insignificant for direct effect. Tacit knowledge sharing played a mediating effect in supervisory justice in their relationship with innovative behaviour. Interestingly, no mediating effect of tacit knowledge sharing on perceived supervisor support. The findings conclude that workplace exchange relationship is crucial between nurse and supervisor. This study provides a conceptual basis for effective tacit knowledge sharing in a teaching hospital. From the practical aspect, this study underlines the importance of nurses to share tacit knowledge in order for them to be innovative.
