

← → ⌛ onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/abs/10.1002/tcr.20230141

Centre For Academic Information Service
(CAIS) Universiti Malaysia Sarawak
(UNIMAS)

Search  Login / Register

WILEY Online Library

Find and compare the best journals for your research. Start here

THE CHEMICAL RECORD

A Journal of the Chemical Society of Cyprus

Review

Synthesis of Electrical Conductive Metal-Organic Frameworks for Electrochemical Applications

Syed Shoab Ahmad Shah, Muhammad Altaf Nazir, Azhar Mahmood, Manzur Sohail, Aziz ur Rehman, Muhammad Khurram Tufail, Tayyaba Najam, Muhammad Sufyan Javed, Sayed M. Eldin, Md Rezaur Rahman, Mohammed M. Rahman  ... See fewer authors. ▾

First published: 18 September 2023 | <https://doi.org/10.1002/tcr.20230141> | Citations: 1

Read the full text >

Abstract

Electrical conductivity is very important property of nanomaterials for using wide range of applications especially energy applications. Metal-organic frameworks (MOFs) are notorious for their low electrical conductivity and less considered for usage in pristine forms. However, the advantages of high surface area, porosity and confined catalytic

Volume 24, Issue 1
Special Issue: Electrochemical Energy Storage
January 2024
e20230141

This article also appears in:
Recent Advances in Electrochemical Energy Storage

Advertisement

WEBINAR:

Reading Research: Extracting Key Data for Your Research
23 May 2024

Learn how research papers are constructed and how to decide if content is relevant to you.

REGISTER