KOTA SAMARAHAN: The Art, Culture, and Heritage Week (MSBW) 2013 contributes to the preservation of our country's art, culture, and heritage, said Universiti Malaysia Sarawak (UNIMAS) Deputy Vice Chancellor (Academic & International) Prof Dr Fatimah Abang.

"We are all aware that our country is made up of people of various races who practise different religions and ways of living.

"That is what makes us unique. Therefore, we should preserve it for the future generations," she said while officiating at the MSBW 2013 held at University Malaysia Sarawak (UNIMAS) here yesterday.

Fatimah, who represented UNIMAS Vice-Chancellor Prof Dato' Dr Mohamad Kadim Suaidi, said the objective of the event was to expose the university's students in managing and organising an event that is creative, innovative, and technologically advanced.

She added that the event would enable students to apply the knowledge they have gained in a practical way and also to allow them to build their network with relevant industries.

"The combination of these three objectives forms a strong platform for the students to involve themselves in various future careers that they wish to venture into.

"To make these objectives a reality, a high level of effort and commitment is needed and I hope that all those participating in this event will show that.

"I also hope the bonds will be strengthened and a stronger sense of teamwork will be forged among the students," she said.

MSBW 2013, which is in its 9th installation, will run until this Saturday (12 Oct) at the Art Site and Experimental Stage at the Faculty of Applied & Creative Arts, UNIMAS.
