THE NATIONAL EDUCATION PHILOSOPHY

Education in Malaysia is an on-going effort to develop the full potential of individuals in a holistic and integrated manner, in order to produce individuals who are intellectually, spiritually, emotionally and physically balanced and harmonious, based on a belief in and devotion to God. Such efforts are designed to produce Malaysian citizens who are knowledgeable and competent, who possess high moral standards, and who are responsible and capable of achieving a high level of personal well-being in addition to being able to contribute to the improvement of the family, society and the nation at large.

FOREWORD

The Malaysian Examinations Council, which was established under Act 225 (the Malaysian Examinations Council Act 1980) is a statutory body under the Malaysian Ministry of Education. The Malaysian Examinations Council is managed by a board of governors which consists of vice-chancellors from local universities (in accordance with Section 6 of the University and University Colleges Act 1971 and Section 1A of the University of Technology MARA Act 1976), the Chief Secretary of the Ministry of Education, the Director General of Education, the Director of Examinations of the Malaysian Examinations Syndicate, the Chief Executive of the Malaysian Examinations Council, and five other members appointed by His Majesty the Yang di-Pertuan Agong. The Chairman of the Council is also appointed by His Majesty the Yang di-Pertuan Agong from amongst the vice-chancellors of local universities.

The Malaysian Examinations Council has been responsible for the Sijil Tinggi Persekolahan Malaysia (STPM) (the Malaysian Higher School Certificate) examination since 1982. This examination replaced the Higher School Certificate examination conducted by the University of Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate in collaboration with the University of Malaya. Since 1999, the Malaysian Examinations Council has also been responsible for the Malaysian University English Test (MUET). MUET is conducted three times a year, and can be taken by local and foreign students who intend to pursue first degree studies in public and private universities in Malaysia.

The present revision of the MUET syllabus is the second since 1999, and has been undertaken in order to ensure that MUET retains its position in testing English proficiency. The changes in the test specification involving Listening, Speaking, Reading and Writing have been made in order to align MUET with the Common European Framework of Reference (CEFR).

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the members of the MUET Syllabus Committee for their contributions. I also wish to thank all the institutions that have allowed their students to participate for the purpose of verifying and validating this test instrument.

Finally, I hope that the revised MUET will have a positive impact on the perceptions of students, the enthusiasm of teachers and the support of the public at large with regard to the teaching and learning of English.

INTRODUCTION

English has always played an important role in the Malaysian education system, and this continuing role is reflected in the revision of the Malaysian University English Test (MUET).

The objective of MUET is to measure the English language proficiency of candidates who intend to pursue first degree studies in order to help institutions make better decisions about the readiness of prospective students for academic coursework, and about their ability to use and understand English in different contexts in the environment of higher education. It is hoped that the MUET tests can also be used to measure the English proficiency of adult learners of English, including teachers and others who need to use English in the workplace in the context of education. MUET tests all four language skills, Listening, Speaking, Reading and Writing, and assesses candidates' level of proficiency using aggregated scores ranging from 1 to 360, which correspond to Bands from 1 to 5+. A results certificate is given to all candidates who complete all four components of the test.

This booklet contains test specifications giving details of each component of MUET. Having been aligned to the CEFR, the specifications make explicit the skills students need to develop to improve their English proficiency, and to make their academic study at tertiary level more effective. This booklet may also be used as a guide to the MUET tests for independent learners and instructors.

GENERAL REGULATIONS

1 Test Dates

- 1.1 MUET is administered three times a year, and the sessions are named MUET Session 1, MUET Session 2 and MUET Session 3. The Malaysian Examinations Council (MEC) also administers MUET on Demand (MoD). Candidates are advised to refer to the MEC portal and official social media accounts for further information on MoD.
- 1.2 The Listening, Reading and Writing tests are taken on the same day, but the Speaking test is taken at times spread over a duration of two weeks. In the special cases of MoD, all four components are taken on the same day, depending on the number of candidates and subject to the availability of rooms for the Speaking test.
- 1.3 Candidates can obtain information about their test dates using the MUET registration slip (MUET/D), which can be downloaded from the MEC portal <http://www.mpm.edu.my>.

2 Test Centres

State Education Departments choose the test centres, taking into account the towns in which candidates wish to take the test.

3 Registration

- 3.1 Registration for MUET and MoD can be made online through the MEC portal.
- 3.2 Candidates from public and private schools and institutions can register for MUET through their schools or institutions.
- 3.3 Private individual candidates can register for MUET online through the MEC portal.
- 3.4 Dates for registration will be advertised by the MEC in local newspapers and the MEC portal.

- 3.5 It is the responsibility of candidates registering online to ensure that their particulars are entered correctly.
- 3.6 Registration fees can be paid via credit card, internet banking or by purchasing a Malaysian Examinations Council PIN (MEC PIN) from Bank Simpanan Nasional (BSN). Candidates are advised to consult the MEC portal for further information on registration and payment.
- 3.7 Candidates can check their registration status through the MEC portal.

4 Test Fees

- 4.1 The MUET and MoD test fees for Malaysian and non-Malaysian candidates are as follows:

Test Type	Test Fee
	Malaysian	Non-Malaysian
MUET	RM150.00	RM250.00
MoD	RM350.00	RM550.00

- 4.2 Candidates are advised to pay the test fee in full before taking the test.
- 4.3 The MEC reserves the right to withhold the results of candidates who have not paid the test fee in full.
- 4.4 The MEC PIN can be used once for the specified session only.

MUET TEST SPECIFICATIONS

1. GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF MUET

MUET is a test of English proficiency for admission to higher education, measuring the ability of test takers to listen, speak, read, and write English in real situations in the education context. The test covers English as used in both formal and informal environments including:

- (a) more formal academic work (e.g. lectures, classroom readings, assignments, class presentations, group discussions, etc.),
- (b) less formal non-academic contexts encountered
  - on campus (e.g. written texts and spoken discourse, including announcements, notices, advertisements and casual socialising with other students and lecturers, etc.), and
  - off-campus (e.g. emails, phone calls, etc.).

There are four test components, namely Listening, Speaking, Reading and Writing, all of which test takers must complete to obtain a score. Detailed information on each component is provided later in this document. The Listening, Speaking, Reading and Writing tests use a range of task types. The items for Listening and Reading are designed to assess the ability to understand English, and Writing and Speaking tasks are designed to assess the ability to use English in specific communicative contexts. The tasks set are of the kind students are expected to perform while at university in formal and informal contexts, and the content is tailored to the requirements of the purpose of the communication. In this regard, the MUET tests are intended to help institutions make better decisions not only about the readiness of prospective students for academic coursework, but also about their ability to use and understand English in different contexts in the environment of higher education.

The MUET tests adopt a communicative approach to language testing, focusing not so much on grammatical knowledge per se (Bachman, 1990; see also Bachman & Palmer, 1996), but rather on communicative language ability, which comprises knowledge or competences, and the capacity to use and understand knowledge appropriately in a specific situational context of communication. The constructs measured are the communicative language skills required to take part in acts of communication as receiver or producer, which means that test items or tasks “must involve the test taker in functions other than simply demonstrating his knowledge of the language.” (Bachman, 1990).

When creating an item or a task, it is important to consider authenticity and what the task is designed to elicit. The test task should be ‘situationally authentic’, and contains as far as possible some key features of the real-life task (see e.g. ALTE, 2011).

A Speaking or Writing task can be made ‘interactionally authentic’ in the following ways:

- using situations and tasks which are likely to be familiar and relevant to the test taker at the target CEFR level,
- making clear the purpose of carrying out a particular task with the intended audience,
- providing appropriate contextualisation, and
- specifying clear criteria for success in completing the task (ALTE, 2011, p. 12).

A test item or task should elicit sufficient appropriate English for a judgement to be made about the communicative ability of test takers to understand and use English. The aim of the Speaking and Writing tests is to elicit and assess test takers' abilities to accomplish particular tasks or task types in acts of communication in which English is essential. In the Listening and Reading tests, test takers are exposed to English in a receptive manner. They meet Bachman and Palmer's definition of a 'nonreciprocal' language use situation in which no feedback is provided, and there is no interaction between language users (Alderson, 2000). This is appropriate for the assessment of some basic skills which are of importance in an academic context.

The tasks and items are designed according to linguistic, sociolinguistic and pragmatic competences which constitute knowledge of English and the ability to use it (see Council of Europe, 2017, pp. 13-14). Linguistic competence refers to knowledge of the language system, including word formation and vocabulary, pronunciation and sentence formation. Sociolinguistic competence refers to knowledge of language use, with the emphasis on appropriateness of communicative acts and the naturalness of speech in given socio-cultural contexts. Pragmatic competence is concerned with the functional use of language, and the rules of cohesion (the linking of utterances) and coherence (the logical sequencing of ideas). It also includes knowing how to use socially appropriate communicative acts in discourse, and how to make meaningful inferences from what has been said or written.

2. GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF THE LISTENING TEST

The primary purpose of the MUET Listening test is to assess the ability of test takers to understand spoken discourse in the higher education context, covering both monologues and dialogues.

Subject/topic knowledge: Subjects are related to and typical of the academic and educational environment. They typically involve familiar and unfamiliar topics in different academic areas that a non-specialist would be able to understand including, but not limited to, people and culture, financial awareness and consumerism, science and technology, health and environment, and education.

Background/cultural knowledge: The test tasks are intended to be accessible to test takers, so that they will be able to draw on their knowledge or understanding of real world settings to respond to them.

Linguistic knowledge: This is concerned with language as a system which includes phonological, syntactic and lexical knowledge with lexical items ranging from general to discipline-specific of a non-technical nature. Linguistic knowledge also includes the pragmatic and sociolinguistic aspects of language use. The former refers to the functional use of language and knowledge of discourse, cohesion and coherence, and text types. The latter is concerned with the knowledge of sociocultural rules of language use, namely knowing how to use and respond to language appropriately.

Processing: This is based on Geranpayeh and Taylor's (2013) model of cognitive processing which includes input decoding, lexical search, syntactic parsing, meaning construction and discourse construction. Meaning construction is characterised by relating the meaning of clauses and sentences to context, and discourse construction is characterised by relating what has been said so far to the overall meaning of the message. Meaning is constructed at word, phrase, sentence and discourse level in order to understand gist, specific information, details, and main ideas, and to deduce meaning.
